Experimentus partners with FDM Group to provide TMMi Professional training throughout 2016

LONDON – The UK's leading IT graduate employer, FDM Group, has partnered with global IT solutions specialist, Experimentus, to deliver the TMMi Professional training programme at FDM's centres in Leeds, London and Glasgow. The training provides candidates with the necessary knowledge to establish an efficient test process, and how to assess its organisational value and improve the general vitality of their IT systems.

“We are seeing a significant increase in organisations worldwide using TMMi to help drive their software process improvement activities and deliver better quality solutions to the business. We are delighted to be working with FDM to bring our TMMi Professional training and experience to organisations across the UK,” says Martin Adcock, Experimentus Managing Director.

Course dates are as follows:

- 20th to 22nd January 2016 in London
- 23rd to 25th February 2016 in Leeds
- 22nd to 24th March 2016 in Glasgow

“FDM is proud to support TMMi as an industry certification. Companies need to recognise how greater collaboration can effectively drive business performance, and by partnering with Experimentus on this initiative we are able to support greater development of skills in IT,” says Andy King, FDM UK Managing Director.
